COURSE DESCRIPTION

EMBA is entirely different from MBA because this course helps professionals with work experience of many years to upgrade their knowledge and understanding of the market sector. One major advantage of this course is that hectic entrance exams are not necessary to join this program which makes the student less stressful. This is very important to consider when choosing between the two different degrees. If students want a more immersive student experience they should most definitely apply for an MBA.

For EMBA students, emphasis is placed very much on networking within a smaller cohort, with a bit less interaction with the wider student body. Students interact with their group on a weekly basis – usually at the weekend. Though the relationships may not be as intense, informal and formal networking is key to the EMBA experience (as it is to full-time programs) and is extremely beneficial for your future career.
