COURSE DESCRIPTION

The programme gives you a unique foundation by combining the core subjects Logistics and Supply Chain Management with Informatics and Economic Geography. You will gain great theoretical knowledge and understanding of the development of the supply chain. You also get the tools needed to be able to analyse, develop and change supply chains.

The education has a strong connection between theory and practice, and you will regularly take part in real cases, visit companies and learn from the faculty's internationally recognized research. All courses are conducted in English and the programme is open to students from all over the world. The international atmosphere contributes to a broad perspective on the issues discussed during classes.
